

Supporting Foodbanks in the Diocese of London during COVID 19 outbreak

Last updated 1st May 2020

Almost all foodbanks in London are still opening, with amended practices to ensure proper social distancing and protection for their volunteers. The biggest need currently remains food supplies- with people not going out shopping as much, and unable to access various foods, their donations are down at this time of great need.

Please check below for specific foodbank needs, and how best to get food to them <https://www.trusselltrust.org/coronavirus-food-banks/get-involved/>

In addition, many mutual aid groups have sprung up and some emergency foodbanks as part of that. Contact your local council to find out about your local response, and also Mutual Aid Groups: <https://covidmutualaid.org/>

All information accurate as far as possible, as of 1st May 2020. There may be foodbanks missing, specifically more informal/independent ones. If there are ones we don't know about please email admin@capitalmass.org.uk with details and we'll add to the list.
